Champions to Make a Holiday

Although Charles H. Ebbets was unable to find any one who was willing to lend a birthday for use to-day he was not to be balked. The Squire of Flatbush hungers for holidays and has had none since last Thursday.

He will feast again this afternoon, for by special proclamation twenty-four hours have been set apart to make up World's Champions' Day.

The Athletics, innocent victims of Mr. Ebbets, will meet the Superbas and will be compelled to march across the field to honor themselves.

In order that no one shall overlook the fact that the day is a festal occasion a band has been engaged. The gates will open two hours before the game to accommodate the rush.
